Merck KGaA, Darmstadt, Germany, to Invest € 50 Million in Italian Production Site in Bari

- Investment to meet the rising demand for biopharmaceuticals

Darmstadt, Germany / Bari, Italy, May 20, 2014 – Merck KGaA, Darmstadt, Germany, today announced plans to invest € 50 million in its Italian production site in Bari in order to respond to the rising demand for biopharmaceuticals.

The announcement was made by Karl-Ludwig Kley, Chairman of the Executive Board of Merck KGaA, Darmstadt, Germany, during a press conference held today at the Bari plant, in the presence of the Italian Prime Minister, Matteo Renzi, and of the President of the Italian Pharma Industries Association Farindustria, Massimo Scaccabarozzi.

Within the biopharmaceuticals division, the Bari site is part of fill & finish operations alongside the facilities in Darmstadt and Aubonne (Switzerland). The drugs produced within this global network are seeing long-term growing demand, especially as regards those to treat infertility. The new production facility in Bari, southern Italy, is to be commissioned in 2017 for the sterile filling and packaging of liquid drugs into syringes, vials and ampoules (fill & finish).

“To make Merck KGaA, Darmstadt, Germany, fit for the future, we are also investing in modern, expanded production capacities in order to meet the rising demand for our drugs,” said Kley, making reference to the “Fit for 2018” transformation and growth program. During his visit to the Bari site today, he explained the reasons for the investment: “This is
